MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST

NOW BEING CONDUCTED BY GRAYLING PUBLIC SCHOOLS

TALES OF HOFFMANN—BARCAROLLE.

Offenbach, Jacques (1819-1896.)
Week ending, March 16, 1923.

He was born of Jewish parents in Offenbach, Germany. Offenbach wrote, during twenty-five years, some ninety compositions, most of which were operas. Several of these were given in America but the only one now heard is "Tales of Hoffman." The plot is centered about a German tavern where guests are making merry. Hoffman the favorite of all, enters and is persuaded to tell of his love affairs. The opera is then divided into three acts, each of which is the tale of one of these love affairs, and each having different characters and setting. The most admired number in the opera is the dreaming Barcarolle, "Belle Nuit" which is given as a duet in the Venetian scene and afterwards introduced as an intermezzo before the last act. The fascinating melody and languorous rhythm are quite irresistible. As the name implies, it was originally a song or chant used by Venetian gondoliers. The music, in 6-8 meter, portrays the gentle swaying of the boat as it is guided over the smooth water of the canal. Its dreamy melancholy given a perfect night. This favorite number is often heard both as a vocal composition and for instruments.

ROUNDED OUT 44 USEFUL YEARS

M. A. BATES HONORED BY CITIZENS TUESDAY NIGHT.

Board of Trade Rooms Scene of Pleasant Meeting to Commemorate Event.

On March 6, 1878 Melvin A. Bates arrived in Grayling with his aunt, Mrs. John Harrington, from Caughdeny, New York, and since that time Grayling has been his home. That was just 44 years ago last Tuesday, and a few of his friends decided that the occasion deserved to be observed in some manner.

"There is always fair weather," so 'tis claimed in an old song. "When jolly fellows get together," and so it was agreed, that a few of Mr. Bates' friends be requested to drop into the Board of Trade rooms Tuesday evening for an informal gathering in his honor.

There were about twenty present and while the men sat around enjoying their cigars, Mr. Bates upon being requested to do so, told of some of the early days in Grayling. There are but few persons here today that were in Grayling at the time he came here. His father had preceded him the fall previous. He spoke of John K. Hanson and Adelbert Taylor, who were just recently laid to rest. R. Hanson and Reuben S. Babbitt.

The old town wasn't much for size 44 years ago, but the Salling Hanson company mills had begun operations here that year, and started Grayling upon an upward growth.

Mr. Bates assured his friends of his sincere appreciation of the honor they were bestowing upon him and said he hoped he could be useful for many years to come.

In response, every person in the room had something to say in the way of their appreciation of the faithful service Mr. Bates has rendered to the public at large and for the many kindly acts he performed in helping others when in times of adversity or in need of advice or counsel. He has always been ready and willing to use his talents in matters for the public good and for the general welfare of our citizens. By his able counsel and efforts he has been able to influence legislation in matters that pertained to our good. His services as the supervisor of Grayling township has been of great value to not only Grayling township but also to Crawford county, and as chairman of the Board, he has been able to administer in constructive methods, and continue the

BEAUTIFUL DOORYARDS.

All householders in Crawford County are cordially invited to go in with those whose yards were landscaped this winter by Mr. Shaffer, for the purpose of sending for a large community order of trees and shrubs, that our community may be made more beautiful.

Material used will be handled at cost by a committee.

If enough people want Norway spruce for windbreaks, groups and hedges we can secure 500 transplanted stock, five years old, 8 to 12 inches high, for $12. of the Agricultural College.

Norway seedlings, 2 years old, for $3 a thousand. White pine can be secured of the State Forester at $5 per thousand for plants averaging 15 inches in height. Splendid chance for farmers to set windbreaks, hedges along paths and drives, and artistic groups.

I have many pictures in my office showing best ways to group evergreens. Call and see them.

Hand orders at once to Mrs. H. L. Fitch, or Mrs. L. J. Kraus, Presidents of Woman's Clubs, or to—

POLISH REVEL AS NATION SUFFERS

CONDITIONS OF POLAND DESCRIBED IN LETTER TO LOCAL CITIZEN.

Mr. C. B. Olevarius of this city is in receipt of unusually interesting letter from a Danish friend who is at present spending some time in Poland. It tells of conditions in that country at this time. We are sure that AVA-LANCHE subscribers will be pleased to read it. We are indebted to Mr. Olevarius for the privilege of publishing it. It reads as follows:

Warsaw, Poland, Feb. 4th, 1923. Since my latest letter of November, we have been through many different experiences: elections, election of a President, riots, murder of the President, state of siege, and so on. Now the murderer has been punished and everybody who had in mind the welfare of Poland hoped that the different political parties would unite and by common efforts try to get Poland out of the terrible crisis which it faces and out of its financial troubles which almost are strangling us. But quite on the contrary; never has the political fighting been more reckless than at present.

Egotism and a tendency of looking at personal profit is the red tape which is going through the proceedings of the "Seima," the Polish diet. The officials are just as corruptible as were the Russian officials of the olden days but unhappily they lack the experience and training of those.

The Polish army, instructed by French officers, is strong and good and excellently armed as it has to be in a country which on all sides is surrounded by enemies—Germans, Russians and so on.

The country is rich; its industry is good, and it has lots of natural resources—salt, timber, oil, coal and so on, and it ought to have a considerable export. Also it could export farm products—eggs, sugar and bacon, and for a part it does. But every day the money rate is decreasing. Today we have to pay for an English pound sterling, 155.00 Polish marks; for an American dollar, 34.00 Polish marks and for a Danish Kr., 60.00 Polish marks; and as the money is dropping in value, the cost of living is increasing enormously. At present I pay for my room 230.00 Polish marks, and service is extra.

The French occupation of the Ruhr district and the Lithuanian occupation of Memel has had a very bad influence on the lumber business. The Germans have stopped buying and cancelled their contracts and the Englishmen who had big orders from Mr. Stinnes are in a very bad fix. Nobody wants to buy; everybody wants to sell, and the price of lumber is going down very fast, and besides, to make the situation worse, this year we have not had any winter as usual—no Christmas, eight degrees centigrade, and at present nine degrees above zero; no snow, but rain and rain every day. As most of the Polish forests are lying very low, the forests are transformed into lakes and the roads to swamps and consequently the transport of the lumber is impossible where no railroads exist.

Although everybody ought to feel downhearted the Poles are leading a very gay life—lots of dances, carnivals, crowded theatres and excellent bands in the splendidly illuminated cafes where a plain meal, a glass of beer and a snip cannot be had at less than 12.000 Polish marks. The Poles don't care for the feast today and tomorrow they borrow in the banks at 10 per cent weekly interest. We foreigners are asking ourselves how this is going to end.

In the morning when we leave home we don't know what we have to pay for the necessities of life. The storekeepers meet every attempt of regulating the prices with a lock-out and then we are worse off. For three months we have had no sugar as the Government had fixed a maximum price. During that time the Jews were well off. They had a large supply of sugar on hand and from their private lodgings they arranged a contraband trade at double and triple prices.

In Posen the conditions are better, as a well ordered cooperative system exists which has forced out the Jews, but I don't think this would be possible in Congress-Poland where the population lacks Prussian discipline. The money printing press is working continually and a short time ago the Government resolved issuing 200 Billion Marks, but nevertheless people have no money. The laborer and the peasant who are making money and who have no real expenses have no trust in the banks or the savings banks and for this reason they hoard the money which they make, in drawers and bags and don't take in consideration that taking the money out of the circulation they decrease the value of them as consequently more paper money has to be printed.

Well here we are back to school after a week and a half of vacation which all of us enjoyed very much.

Athletics.

After a terrific struggle, the Grayling High School quintet defeated the Gaylord High School basketballs last Friday on the latter's floor by a 25-17 count.

The game was hard fought from start to finish. The Green and White boys showed fine team play and did not waste a minute putting their well directed plays into use. The contest started off at a lively pace, although little scoring was done by either team. Two field goals by McPhee tied the count 4 when the first quarter ended. More scoring was done in the second quarter but neither teams seemed to have a decided advantage. The Hoboes led by three points at one time which was the most the two teams were separated in the first half. Dyer, Gaylord's center got a field basket just as the period ended putting them within one point of the Green and White.

Both teams came on the floor at the beginning of the second half determined to play for all that they were worth. During the third quarter they played fast and hard. Grayling scored a field goal, while Gaylord made a field goal and a foul throw which made the count 13-13 when the quarter ended.

As the last quarter started the Gaylord lads got a field goal from the tip-off. A minute later a play from center—McPhee to Landsberg to Brown tied the count. From then on Gaylord fell behind. They seemed to slow up and the Hoboes took advantage of the opportunity at once. The Green and White kept on piling up baskets and when the game ended were leading 25-17.

The work of Hansen and Ingalls on the defense was very good. Both stayed back and gave their opponents but few short shots. McPhee shone on both the offense and the defense, keeping his man well covered and registering three field goals. Brown and Landsberg often broke away for open shots at the basket, which was noticeable in the last period when both came through with goals when most needed. McCoy and Wilkensen starred for Gaylord.

A very enthusiastic crowd of rooters and fans followed our boys to Gaylord which did very much in bringing them to victory.

The summary:
Grayling Brown R.F. McCoy
Landsberg L.F. Wilkensen
McPhee (Capt.) C. Dyer (Capt.)
Hansen R.G. Laney
Ingalls L.G. Clapper

Grayling: 4-7-2-12-25.
Gaylord: 4-6-3-4-17.
Field goals: Brown 5, Landsberg 3, McPhee 3, Wilkensen 3, McCoy 2, Dyer 1.

Foul throws: Brown 3 in 4, Wilkensen 3 in 6, McCoy 2 in 5, Substitutions: Klein for Laney, Laney for Wilkensen, Murner for Klein, Wilkensen for Murner.

Referee: Bell of Cheboygan.
In a fast and well played game, Grayling H. S. girls and the Gaylord team battled to a 12-12 tie score, the final score being in doubt right up to the last whistle which ended the game.

There was little chance to choose between the teams as both seemed evenly matched. The first half ended 9 to 7 in favor of Gaylord.

Both teams came on the floor determined to win the second half. Defense the two teams improved this period as the Bobbies made two field goals and the Gaylord lasses but one. The third quarter ended 10-10. Late in the last quarter Grayling tied the score at 12 and the final whistle blew with the ball near the Grayling basket.

An effort is being made to arrange games for the H. S. teams this week, which was left open when Boyne City cancelled.

James Wood and Frank Schmidt are now playing on the "Reserves." Coach Brown's Hoboes will probably enter the Fourth Annual Basket Ball Tournament at Petoskey, March 23rd and 24th.

H. S. Boys and Girls go to West Branch March 16.
A debate will be given by the Community Civics class next Monday. The question for the debate is "Resolved, that the State of Michigan have capital punishment."

DEATH CLAIMS ADELBERT TAYLOR

WAS ONE OF EARLY SETTLERS AND WAR VETERAN.

Adelbert Taylor passed away at his home on Peninsular avenue Saturday at 3:35 o'clock a. m. at the age of 79 years. For several years past Mr. Taylor had been in feeble health and his death was not unexpected.

Mr. Taylor is one of Grayling's earliest settlers, coming here in 1878. He was a veteran of the Civil war, held many political offices in the county and was postmaster of Grayling lodge F. and A. M.

Adelbert Taylor was born May 22, 1844 in Mexico, N. Y. There he spent his early boyhood working on a farm. During the time of the Civil war he enlisted in the U. S. cavalry where he distinguished himself as a soldier, in the interest of his country. He was severely injured by a saber cut which laid him up in a hospital for some time. He took part in the memorable battles of Winchester and Cedar Creek and was honorably discharged in May, 1865.

On November 24, 1867 he was united in marriage at Hastings, N. Y. to Miss Clarissa Merchant. To this union was born seven children—George and Emma, who died in their early years; Mrs. William Butler, and William Taylor, Detroit; Mrs. George Darling, Miss Florence and Floyd Taylor, of this city.

After his marriage he was employed on the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg R. R. The family came to Grayling to take up their residence in 1878, and Mr. Taylor found employment in the Goodell lumber mill. Later he worked as a carpenter and builder and was contractor and builder of the Grayling school building that was destroyed by fire January 21, of 1915.

Mr. Taylor was honored by being elected to several public offices, such as judge of probate, supervisor, member school board, etc. He was a member of Grayling Masonic lodge where he acted as secretary for 17 years, and also was honored by being elected master. He was a charter member of Grayling Chapter R. A. M. No. 120. One of his most cherished associations was as a member of Marvin Post, G. A. R. of this city.

Besides the children mentioned above, Mr. Taylor is survived by his wife, and five grandchildren—Alvin LaChapelle, Helen Darling and Ethel Taylor of this city and Florence and William Butler, Jr., of Detroit. Mr. Taylor was a good citizen and stood well in the esteem of those who knew him, especially those of his earlier associations who knew him best. He led a useful and honest life and deserved to be enrolled upon the roster of God's faithful servants.

The funeral services were held Monday afternoon in the Michelson Memorial church. Rev. Jones, the pastor, officiating, was assisted by the Masonic fraternity who conferred the burial service of that order. Interment was in Elmwood cemetery.

CRAWFORD COUNTY CHILDREN GIVEN A GENUINE TREAT. EXTRA SHOW PUT ON FOR KID-DIES IN LAND-CLEARING CAR.

The gentlemen conducting the land-clearing meetings in this County, Messrs. Livingston and Kessler of the M. A. C. and Mr. E. J. Leenhouts of the Michigan Central, got themselves in solid with the younger generation by putting on an extra motion picture show at Roscommon and Grayling in the evenings for the young folks. Anyone who happened to be caught in the rush and the crush will testify that the response was as enthusiastic as it was boisterous. It was a big night for the young folks and they made the most of it. The big white demonstration car which is being used for the land-clearing meetings, was crowded until it seemed as if they were piled in two deep.

The Agricultural Department of the N. Y. C. lines provided four reels of motion pictures of a general agricultural nature for the evening's entertainment and they were all favorably and vociferously received. After the last film was shown which depicted Uncle Sam as a hired man on the farm, the boys put in an insistent request for some pictures on land-clearing and the interest which these pictures aroused indicated that even the younger generation appreciate the necessity of more efficient methods in land clearing.

CHAPTER XXX—Continued.

But it came about that there was other business for Bruce than the recovery of his blankets that he had supposed would be tied to the saddle. The snow was thick between, and he was within twenty feet of the animal's body before he glimpsed it clearly again. And he felt the first wave of wonder, the first promptings of the thought that the horse he had shot down was not his, but one that he had never seen before.

But there was no time for the thought to go fully home. Some one cried out—a strange, half-articulate cry—and triumph that was almost lacking in all human quality—and a man's body leaped toward him from the thicket before which the horse had fallen. It was Simon, and Bruce had mistaken his horse for the one he had ridden.

Even in that instant crisis he did not forget that he had as yet neglected to expel the empty cartridge from the barrel of his rifle and to throw in the other from the magazine. He tried to get the gun to his shoulder, working the lever at the same time. But Simon's leap was too fast for him. His strong hand seized the barrel of the gun and snatched it from his hands. Then the assailant threw it back, over his shoulder, and it fell softly in the snow.

The two men stood face to face at last. All things else were forgotten. The world they had known before—a world of sorrow and pleasures, of mountains and woods, and homes—faded out and left no realities except each other's presence.

All about them were the snow flurries that their eyes could not penetrate, and it was as if they were two lone contestants on an otherwise uninhabited sphere who had come to grips at last. The falling snow gave the whole picture a curious tone of unreality and dimness.

Bruce straightened, and his face was of iron. "Well, Simon," he said, "You've come."

The man's eyes burned red through the snow. "Of course I would. Did you think you could escape me?"

"It didn't much matter whether I escaped you or not," Bruce answered rather quietly. "Neither one of us is going to escape the storm and the cold. I suppose you know that."

"I know that one of us is. Because one of us is going out in a more direct way—first. Which one of us is doesn't much matter." His great hands clasped. "Bruce, when I snatched your gun right now I could have done more. I could have sprung a few feet farther and had you around the waist—taken by surprise. The fight would have been already over. I think I could have done more than that, even—with my own rifle as you came up. It's lying there, just beside the horse."

But Bruce didn't turn his eyes to look at it. He was waiting for the attack.

"I could have snatched your life just as well, but I wanted to wait," Simon went on. "I wanted to say a few words first, and wanted to master you—not by surprise—but by superior strength alone."

It came into Bruce's mind he could tell Simon of the wound near his shoulder, how because of it no fight between them would be a fair test of superiority, yet the words didn't come to his lips. He could not ask mercy of this man, either directly or indirectly, any more than the pines asked mercy of the snows that covered them.

"You were right when you said there is no escaping from this storm," Simon went on. "But it doesn't much matter. It's the end of a long war."

The Two Men Stood Face to Face at Last and what happens to the victor is neither here nor there. It seems all the more fitting that we should meet just as we have—at the very brink of death—and death should be waiting at the end for the one of us who survives. It's so like this—d-d, terrible wilderness in which we live."

Bruce eyed him in amazement. The dark and dreadful poetry of this man's nature was coming to the fore. The wind moaned a strange echo to his words—a long, wild shriek as it swept over the heads of the pines.

"Then why are you waiting?" Bruce asked.

"As you can understand everything, but I guess that time is here. There is to be no mercy at the end of this fight, Bruce; I ask none and will give none. You have waged a war against me, you have escaped me many times, you have won the love of the woman I love—and this is to be my answer." His voice dropped a note, and he spoke more quietly. "I'm going to kill you, Bruce."

"Then try it," Bruce answered steadily. "I'm in a hurry to go back to Linda."

Simon's smoldering wrath blazed up at the words. Both men seemed to spring at the same time. Their arms flailed, then interlocked; and they rocked a long time—back and forth in the snow.

For the first time Bruce had full realization of Simon's mighty strength. With all the power of his body he tried to wrench him off his feet, but it was like trying to tear a tree from the ground.

But surprise at the other's power was not confined to Bruce alone. Simon knew that he had an opponent worthy of the iron of his own muscles, and he put all his terrible might into the battle. He tried to reach Bruce's throat, but the man's strong shoulder held the arm against his side. Simon's great hand reached to pin Bruce's arm, and for the first time he discovered the location of his weakness.

He saw the color sweep from Bruce's face and water drops that were not melted snow came upon it. It was all the advantage needed between such evenly matched contestants. And Simon forgot his spoken word that he wished this fight to be a test of superiority alone. His fury swept over him like a flood and he faced all things else; and he centered his whole attack upon Bruce's wound.

In a moment he had him down, and he struck once into Bruce's white face with his terrible knuckles. The blow sent a strange sickness through the younger man's frame; and he tried vainly to struggle to his feet. "Fight! Fight on!" was the message his mind dispatched along his nerves to his tortured muscles, but for an instant they wholly refused to respond. They had endured too much. Total unconsciousness hovered above him, ready to descend.

Strangely, he seemed to know that Simon had crept from his body and was even now reaching some dreadful weapon that lay beside the dead form of the horse. In an instant he had it, and Bruce's eyes opened in time to see him swinging it aloft. It was his rifle, and Simon was aiming a murderous blow at him with its stock.

There was no chance to ward it off. No human skull could withstand its shattering impact.

But that war of life and death in the far reaches of Trail's End was not to end so soon. At that instant there was an amazing intervention.

A great gray form came lunging out of the snow flurries. Their vision was limited to a few feet, and so fast the creature came, with such incredible, smashing power, that he was upon them in a breath. It was the Killer in the full glory of the charge; and he had caught up with them at last.

Bruce saw only his great figure looming just over him. Simon, with amazing agility, leaped to one side just in time, then battered down the rifle stock with all his strength. But the blow was not meant for Bruce. It struck where aimed—the great gray shoulder of the grizzly.

Then, dimmed and half-obscured by the snow flurries, there began a strange battle as the great pines above them had ever beheld. The Killer's rage was upon him, and the blow at the shoulder had arrested his charge for a moment only. Then he wheeled, a snarling, fighting monster, with death for any living creature in the blow of his forearm, and lunged toward Simon again.

It was the Killer at his grandest. Simon had no chance to shoot his rifle. In the instant that he would raise it those great claws and fangs would be upon him. He swung it as a club, striking again and again, dodging the sledge-hammer blows and springing aside in the second of the Killer's lunges. He was fighting for his life, and no eye could bemean that effort.

Simon himself seemed exalted, and for once it appeared that the grizzly had found an opponent worthy of his might. They were of one kind, and they seemed to understand each other. The lust and passion and fury of battle were upon them both.

The scene harked back to the young days of the world, when man and beast battled for dominance. Nothing had changed. The forest stood grave and silent, just the same. The elements warred against them from the clouds—that ancient persecution of which the wolf pack sings on the ridge at night, this endless strife that has made of existence a travail and a scourge. Man and beast and storm—those three great foes were arrayed the same as ever. Time swung backward a thousand thousand years.

The snow seemed to come from all directions in great clouds and flurries and streamers, and time after time it wholly hid the contestants from Bruce's eyes. At such times he could tell how the fight was going by sound alone—the snarl of the Killer, the wild oaths of Simon, the impact of the descending rifle butt. Bruce gave no thought of taking part. Both were enemies; his own strength seemed gone. The cold deepened; Bruce could feel it creeping into his blood, halting its flow, threatening the spark of life within him. The full light of day had come out upon the land.

Bruce knew the wilderness now. All its primitive passions were in play, all its mighty forces at grips. The storm seemed to be trying to extinguish these mortal lives; jealous of their intrusion, longing for the world it knew before living things came to dwell upon it, when its winds swept endlessly over an uninhabited earth, and its winter snows lay trackless and its rule was supreme. And beneath it, blind to the knowledge that in union alone lay strength to oppose its might—to oppose all those cruel forces that make a battleground of life—man and beast fought their battle to the death.

Linda came stealing out of the snow—following the grizzly's trail—and crept beside Bruce. She crouched beside him, and his arm went about her as if to shield her. She heard the sounds of the battle from afar; she had thought that Bruce was the contestant, and her terror had left a deep pallor upon her face; yet now she gazed upon that frightful conflict with a strange and enduring calm. Both she and Bruce knew that there was but one sure conqueror, and that was Death. If the Killer survived the fight and through the mercy of the forest gods spared their lives, there remained the blizzard. They could conceive of no circumstances whereby further effort would be of the least avail.

The scene grew in fury. The last burst of strength was upon Simon; in another moment he would be exhausted. The bear had suffered terrible punishment from the blows of the rifle stock. He needed more, and then lunged with unbelievable speed. His huge paw, with all his might behind it, struck the weapon from Simon's hand.

It shot through the air seemingly almost as fast as the bullets it had often propelled from its muzzle, and struck the trunk of a tree. So hard it came that the bark was shattered; they heard the ring of metal. The bear recoiled forward once more and struck again. And then all the sound that was left was the eerie complaint of the wind.

Simon lay still. The brave fight was over. His trail had ended fittingly—in the grip of such powers as were typical of himself. But the bear did not leap upon him to tear his flesh. For an instant he stood like a statue in a strange attitude of thought. Then the great grizzly uttered one deep note and half-turned about. His eyes rested upon the trout, but he did not seem to see them.

Then he turned again and headed off slowly, deliberately, directly into the face of the storm.

CHAPTER XXXI

The flurries almost immediately obscured the Killer's form, and Bruce turned his attention back to Linda. "It's the end," he said quietly. "Why not here as well as anywhere else?"

The horse on which was tied their scanty blankets was miles away by now; its tracks were obscured in the snow, and they could not find their way to any shelter that might be concealed among the ridges.

But before the question was finished, a strange note had come into his voice. It was as if his attention had been called from his words by something much more momentous. The truth was that it had been caught and held by a curious expression on the girl's face. All at once she sprang to her feet.

"Bruce!" she cried. "Perhaps there's a way yet. A long, long chance, but maybe a way yet. Get your rifle—Simon's is broken—and come with me."

Without waiting for him to rise she struck off into the storm, following the huge footprints of the bear. The man struggled with himself, summoned all that was left of his reserve supply of strength, and leaped up. He snatched his rifle from the ground where Simon had thrown it, and in an instant was beside her. Her cheeks were blazing.

"Maybe it just means further torture," she confessed to him, "but don't you want to make every effort we can to save ourselves? Don't you want to fight till the last breath?"

She glanced up and saw her answer in the growing strength of his face. Then his words spoke too. "As long as the slightest chance remains," he replied.

"And you'll forgive me if it comes to nothing?"

He smiled dimly. She took fresh heart when she saw he still had strength enough to smile. "You don't have to ask me that."

"A moment ago an idea came to me—it came so straight and sure it was as if a voice told me," she explained hurriedly. She didn't look at him again. She kept her eyes intent upon the great footprints in the snow. To miss them for a second meant, in that world of whirling snow, to lose them forever. "It was after the bear had killed Simon and had gone away. He acted exactly as if he thought of something and went out to do it—exactly as if he had a destination in view. Didn't you see—his anger seemed to die in him and he started off in the face of the storm. I've watched the ways of animals too long not to know that he had something in view. It wasn't food; he would have attacked the body of the horse, or even Simon's body. If he had just been running away or wandering, he would have gone with the wind, not against it. He was weakened from the fight—perhaps dying—and I think—"

He finished the sentence for her, breathlessly. "That he's going to and shelter."

"Yes, you know, Bruce—the bears hibernate every year. That's my one hope now—that the Killer has gone to some cave he knows about to hibernate until this storm is over. I think from the way he started off, so sure and so straight, that it's near. It would be dry and out of the storm, and if we could take it away from him we could make a fire that the snow wouldn't put out. It would mean life—and we could go on when the storm is over."

"You remember—we have only one cartridge."

"Yes, I know—I heard you fire. And it's only a thirty-three at that. It's a risk—as terrible a risk as we've yet run. But it's a chance."

They talked no more. Instead, they walked as fast as they could into the face of the storm. They walked much more swiftly than the bear, and they could tell by the appearance of the tracks that they were but a few yards behind him.

They soon became aware that they were mounting a low ridge. They left the underbrush and emerged into the open timber. And all at once Bruce, who now walked in front, paused with lifted hand, and pointed. Dim through the flurries they made out the outline of the bear. And Linda's inspiration had come true.

There was a ledge of rocks just in front—a place such as the rattlesnakes had loved in the blasting sun of summer—and a black hole yawned in its side. The aperture had been almost covered with the snow, and they saw that the great creature was scooping away the remainder of the white drift with his paw. As they waited, the opening grew steadily wider, revealing the mouth of a little cavern in the face of the rock.

"Shoot!" Linda whispered. "If he gets inside we won't be able to get him out."

But Bruce shook his head, then stole nearer. She understood; he had only one cartridge, and he must not take the risk of wounding the animal. The fire had to be centered on a vital place.

He walked steadily nearer until it seemed to Linda he would advance straight into reach of the terrible claws. The Killer turned his head and saw Bruce. Rage flamed again in his eyes. He half-turned about, then poised to charge.

The gun moved swiftly, easily, to the man's shoulder, his chin dropped down, his straight eyes gazed along the barrel. In spite of his wound never had human arms held more steady than his did then. And he marked the little space of gray squarely between the two retreating eyes.

The finger pressed back steadily against the trigger. The rifle cracked in the silence. And then there was a curious effect of tableau, a long second in which all three figures seemed to stand deeply still.

The bear leaped forward, and it seemed wholly impossible to Linda that Bruce could swerve aside in time to avoid the blow. She cried out in horror as the great paws whipped down in the place where Bruce had stood. But the man had been prepared for this very recoil, and he had sprung aside just as the claws raked past.

And the Killer would hunt no more in Trail's End. At the end of that leap he fell, his great body quivering strangely in the snow. The lead had gone straight home where it had been aimed, and the charge itself had been mostly muscular reflex. He lay still at last, a gray, mammoth figure that was majestic even in death.

No more would the deer shudder with terror at the sound of his heavy step in the thicket. No more would the herds fly into stampede at the sight of his great shadow on the moonlit grass. The last of the Oregon grizzlies had gone the way of all his breed.

To Bruce and Linda, standing breathless and awed in the snow-flurries, his death seemed the passing of an old order—the last stand that the forces of the wild had made against conquering man. But there was pathos in it, too. There was the symbol of mighty breeds humbled and destroyed.

But the pines were left. Those eternal symbols of the wilderness—and of powers beyond the wilderness—still stood straight and grand and impassive above them. While these two lived, at least, they would still keep their watch over the wilderness, they would still stand erect and brave to the buffeting of the storm and snow, and in their shade dwell strength and peace.

The cavern that was revealed to them had a rock floor and had been hollowed out by running water in ages past. Bruce built a fire at its mouth of some of the long tree roots that extended down into it, and the life-giving warmth was a benediction. Already the drifting snow had begun to cover the aperture.

"We can wait here until the blizzard is done," Bruce told Linda, as she sat beside him in the soft glow of the fire. "We have a little food, and we can cut more from the body of the grizzly when we need it. There's dead wood under the snow. And when the storm is over, we can get our bearings and walk out."

She sat a long time without answering. "And after that?" she asked.

He smiled. "No one knows. It's ten days before the thirtieth—the blizzards up here never last over three or four days. We've got plenty of time to get the government down to the courts. The law will deal with the rest of the Turners. We've won, Linda."

His hands groped for hers, and he laid it against his lips. With her other hand she stroked his snow-wet hair. Her eyes were lustrous in the twilight.

"And after that—after all that is settled? You will come back to the mountains?"

"Could I ever leave them?" he exclaimed. "Of course, Linda. But I don't know what I can do up here—except maybe to establish my claim to my father's old farm. There's a hundred or so acres. I believe I'd like to feel the handles of a plow in my palms."

"It was what you were made for, Bruce," she told him. "It's born in you. There's a hundred acres there—and three thousand—somewhere else. You've got new strength, Bruce. You could take hold and make them yield up their hay—and their crops—and all all these hills with the herds."

She stretched out her arms. Then all at once she dropped them almost as if in supplication. But her voice had regained the old merry tone he had learned to love when she spoke again. "Bruce, have I got to do all the asking?"

His answer was to stretch his great arms and draw her into them. His laugh rang in the cavern.

"Oh, my dearest!" he cried. The eyes lighted in the dimmed face. "I ask for everything—everything—hold that I am! And what I want worst—this minute—"

"Yes?"

"—Is just—a kiss."

She gave it to him with all the tenderness of her soft lips. The snow stirred down outside. Again the pines spoke to one another, but the sadness seemed mostly gone from their soft voices.

FISH BRING LEGION INCOME

Beaver Dam, Wis., Post Plans to Erect Community Building With Funds Obtained.

"Gold fish," was the contemptuous title bestowed upon embalmers by John Doughboy during the World War. Many soldiers developed a lasting prejudice against anything moving in water because their army diet so often included thrived fish.

However, the fishy tribe has staged an unusual comeback in one community. Members of the John E. Miller post of the American Legion, and likewise the good citizens of Beaver Dam, Wis., owe the possibility of a fine new community building to fish and to the practical imagination of the Legion members.

For a number of years, the Wisconsin conservation commission had awarded the concession of selling German and buffalo carp and other "rough fish" from Beaver Dam lake to professional fishermen, who annually gleaned many francs by selling their catch in the city markets.

Then the Legion post stepped in. Charles E. Yauman, post commander, and William Lawrence, vice commander of the Wisconsin department, organized the Legionnaires for the purpose of circulating a petition to obtain the fishing concession from the conservation commission, with the understanding that profits would be used by the Legion in the construction of a community building. More than 4,000 persons signed the petition and the commission granted the concession to the veterans.

The Legionnaires organized the effort in a business-like manner. Yauman took care of the formation of selling crews and Lawrence made arrangements with New York and Chicago markets as well as local and nearby merchants to sell the catch. The post has more than 350 members, and everyone took some part in the enterprise.

The post's report testifies to the success of the undertaking: "We have sold up to the present time a little over 90 tons of buffalo carp, which has netted us more than $7,500, including our equipment, which is as fine as any fishing crew can have," the report states. "We have paid $2,000 to the state and to our crew members, who were local boys and for the most part Legion members, as high as $1,000 a week in salaries, and $1,000 to our local box factory."

"We sold many tons of fish to local consumers at a much lower price than market quotations, which pleased the home people very much. We sold a quantity of fish in 1934 and lots of families to be salted, smoked and pickled for one use."

The Beaver Dam post has enlisted support of the conservation commission in its undertaking. Game wardens cooperated with all fishing crews and assisted materially in the success of the operation.

Recognized as the leading community organization in the town, the post has backed all worthy enterprises. Its large band is at the call of civic and patriotic organizations.

Won Legion Essay Prize.

Donald Lewis Campbell of Clinton, Ia., won first prize in his state in the American Legion's essay contest on the subject, "How Can the American Legion Best Serve the Nation?" The young Iowa's essay has been forwarded to Legion national headquarters, where it will be judged in competition with other state winners for national honors by a board composed of John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education; E. E. Moore, former national commissioner of education, and S. S. McClure, the publisher. The Legion gave Campbell a medal. If he wins the national contest, he will receive a scholarship of $750 in any college or university. Young Campbell won first prize in a national essay contest in 1920 over all other school children contestants on the subject, "What Are the Benefits of an Enlistment in the United States Army?"

LANSING LETTER

(By W. L. Calton)
LANSING, MICH.

Whether or not there will be a "test of strength" in the legislative halls over some measure, the result of which test will settle the extent of Gov. Groesbeck's influence with the lawmakers of the 1923 session, there is about due some real decision as to how far the governor's plans are to be followed in the making of new laws. Thus far the governor has avoided any steps that might bring on a clash over unsettled matters that are up for decision, but his advice and counsel have been sought by many senators and representatives in proposed compromises on gasoline taxes, road building plans and other big matters. Announcement that the compromise plan on automobile taxes by which there would be a one cent tax on gasoline, along with increased motor vehicle license fees, had finally been agreed to by the governor caused some mutterings of discontent among those unalterably opposed to a gasoline tax. Some of them may attempt later in the house and senate to obtain a test vote by which the governor's strength in the two houses will be shown. General opinion now is that the governor has nothing to fear from such a test. The compromise on the gasoline tax by which it is dropped to one cent a gallon and combined with a weight tax for motor vehicles was caused by the yielding of those working for a two cent straight gas tax to the apparent weight of opposition to their plan. The governor has stated his belief that the compromise plan, if adopted, will equalize the burden of constructing and maintaining the highways on all classes of users, according to the wear and tear of their cars on the roads.

Gas Tax Battle Looms

The prospective battle over road legislation and taxation to cover road building and maintenance, the latter including gasoline tax proposals and increased motor vehicle license proposals, grows in importance the longer it is delayed. Advocates of a straight 2-cent tax on gasoline appear determined to fight for their cause without regard to any combination of a gas tax with a license tax or any compromise bill whatever. In the house the Evans bill for a 2-cent gas tax has been reported out by itself and in the senate the highway appropriation bill has been reported out without any combination with special tax measures. The Evans bill supporters will stick to their bill without amendments which would bring it in line with the proposed compromise on a one-cent gasoline tax and an increased weight tax on motor cars. Likewise the advocates of the compromise plan will endeavor either to shelve the Evans measure or make it over to their liking. Either way the whole matter now is ready for debate on the open floor. In view of the appropriation being sought for all road work for the next two years, what is needed by the state over and above present motor license receipts to pay for the whole road program, is about five and a half million dollars each of the next two years. The 2-cent gas tax sponsors say their tax will net the state six millions a year and the compromise bill backers figure out the same sum their way.

Highway Program Due for Revision

Systematizing of the state's highway program and a definite fixing of responsibility for it, is to be attempted in this legislature. It now looks as though the general trend of legislation on highway building will include the state assuming responsibility for constructing and maintaining the trunk line roads; the state will be relieved of the payment of road awards; special highway construction orders will be eliminated; future large road projects will be subject to the approval of the state highway commissioner, with his action subject to review by the governor. It is argued that the suspension of state rewards will offset increased maintenance costs. Truck lines will be defined explicitly. Objections to present covert aid road projects will be overcome under this plan, it is believed by its advocates. All of these phases of the general highway situation are to be worked out in the senate and house committees before the final plans are placed before the two houses.

Bonus Funds to Be Provided

The house ways and means committee has acted favorably on the Dacey bill to allow the state to continue the payment of soldier bonus money from the general funds of the state, the special $30,000,000 fund having been exhausted. It is estimated that additional bonus payments may reach a total of $2,000,000. Nearly 1,000 applications that have been approved by the bonus division are awaiting funds for payment to Michigan soldiers.

An abattoir bill requiring licensing of all slaughter houses and providing for sanitary conditions; and a vinegar bill licensing elder mills and vinegar factories and setting standards of elder vinegar made for commercial purposes have been introduced by Senator Leland for the state agricultural department.

Former Yank Mascot Back in France

Birmingham, England—"You've seen life, young man," said the Birmingham magistrate to George Le Dantec, a French lad of 16, who was charged with being an unregistered alien and with landing without proper authority. Dantec was a mascot with the United States troops in France. He was under fire continuously, and was wounded twice. When the United States Army was repatriated he was smuggled on board ship and carried to New York. He was returned to England and sent to France.

Movies Censorship Bill Fizzles

One measure over which a stormy debate was anticipated if it came up in either house appears to be doomed to committee death. It is the moving picture censorship bill. The state affairs committee of the two houses held a joint public hearing on this proposal and after the hearing was over it appeared that only a remote chance was left for the bill being reported out. The theory is that the whole public is the best censor of pictures that get past the national censorship and the police censorship of cities.

Real Grind Has Started

With the coming of March the legislature is down to its real grind and the daily calendars of both house and senate are beginning to take on the size and appearance of the rush period in consideration of proposed laws. Committees are reporting out rapidly the bills they have had in their possession for weeks, sometimes as many as twenty a day in the house and a dozen or more in the senate going on the general orders for floor debate.

Brief Notes of Interest

Financing of state institutions from funds raised through the general property tax, which it is estimated will not exceed $16,000,000 a year for the next two years, is being worked out by Gov. Groesbeck and the appropriate committee of both houses. This plan would leave about $3,000,000 each year for all the building programs of the state agricultural college, the University and other state institutions. The total building requests for the two year period is about a half million over $16,000,000.

The house has sent to third reading the Dykstra bill to permit the issuance of teachers' certificates for 2 year periods to graduates of junior colleges, so that they may teach in schools which now are suffering from a lack of teachers. Attempt to amend this bill so as to confine such teachers to the cities in which they are graduated was defeated in the house committee of the whole, it being held that such amendment would prevent relief from reaching rural districts which need it the most.

The competency of men in charge of reforestation work in the state, under the department of conservation was attacked at a meeting of the legislative conservation committees and the state conservation commission. Senator Pearson declared that the forest work was not being handled on practical lines and insisted that it must be. The department's appropriation bill, introduced shortly after, asks a total of $1,322,700 for the next two years.

The legislature has been asked by the Michigan Real Estate association, following a session in this city, to enact a law prescribing definite tax rate limits. No lines have been devised whereby the tax limit could be applied to state and local taxation, but the idea was to get the legislature to give thought along the line of obtaining some means of setting a dead line beyond which taxes cannot go.

Rep. Ladd, of Old Mission, has introduced a bill in the house to give the state administrative board power to sell at its discretion lands used by any state institution. It would permit the sale of land outside Lansing purchased for the boys' industrial school. The administrative board now wants to keep the school inside the city.

Rep. Espie, of Clinton, has introduced a bill to give the public utilities commission power to regulate gas companies serving two or more municipalities under separate franchises. Another bill, put in by Rep. Look, of Lowell, would give the utilities commission power to grant rehearings and to amend or modify findings.

A legislative investigation of the highway department, covering the awarding of road building contracts to see if any state officials or their families have benefited thereby, and whether or not proper construction has been had, has been proposed in a house resolution put in by Rep. Wardell, of Detroit, and referred to the rules committee.

The usual legislative move since the establishment of the state constabulary to wipe out the body by repeal of the law creating it, has been made this session in a bill introduced by Rep. Braman, of Kent county. The constabulary, in an appropriation bill, is asking for $350,000 for each of the next two years.

Senator Leland has introduced a bill to amend the state seed law by providing for the seizure, by the state of seeds suspected to be below standard or sold contrary to the provisions of the law. Under present conditions, it is said, it takes months to penalize violators of the seed laws.

Rep. Bryan, of Charlotte, has introduced a bill to amend the prohibition law so that empty containers of intoxicating liquor may be competent evidence of violation of the prohibition law, where it is not possible to get the actual evidence once contained in the container.

Insurance company protests against a state rating bureau fixing fire insurance rates, made at a public hearing, have not changed the attitude of Gov. Groesbeck, who is standing with the state insurance department in insisting that the state have the final say on rates.

Rep. Wade, of Allegan, has introduced a bill to exempt from personal property taxes all real property held by banks under 50-year lease which obligates the bank to pay the tax.

Wild Animals Decreasing

With the ever-increasing demand for fur, game is becoming scarce, and furs are steadily rising in value. As the bison vanished from the plains, so the elk is near extinction, as the moose has retreated to the pitifully small numbers to the most inaccessible places of the Barrens, as the sea otter and sable marten are so scarce, that their fur is worth more than gold of like weight, so will other noble fur bearers vanish, if fashion does not turn elsewhere for adornment.

The professional trapper thinks of fur only in terms of dollars, and when a district is trapped out, he moves on. The amount of fur caught during the winter season solely depends on the physical ability of the trapper to endure hardships, and the value of a season's catch often runs into thousands of dollars. It takes years to bring game back into a district that has been trapped out, and with thousands of hunters after game to the very edge of the world, only fur farming and protective laws will assure the survival of many species of fur bearers.

RATHER APPEALED TO HER

Girl's Frank Statement Must Have Been Somewhat Disconcerting to Her Accepted Husband.

Dr. Brander Matthews, the famous critic, said at a Columbia tea: "The school of French novelists that is passing—the school of Anatole France, and Loti and Mirabeau and Maupassant—was very brilliant, certainly, but its philosophy wasn't cheering."

"Those men remind me of an anecdote. A young chap had proposed to a beautiful girl. The girl, blushing and weeping a little, had accepted him. He folded her in his arms, pressed his lips to hers and whispered: 'I love you.' In the first time you have ever loved?'" "Yes," the girl sighed, "but it's so nice that I hope it won't be the last."

Moabite Stone

The "Real Moabite Stone" is a black basaltic block, unearthed at Dibon in 1868 by Rev. F. A. Klier, 3.8 feet by 1.2 feet in dimensions, which contains 34 lines in the Phoenician language. These chronicle the descent of Mesha, king of Moab, from Ahab, king of Israel. At least two replicas of this valuable stone have been in Paris.

Immigration Figures

No trustworthy immigration records were kept in the early history of the republic. From 1783 it is estimated that the number of immigrants to this country was about 4,000 a year until 1794, when the number was increased to 10,000. Then it dropped to about 6,000 until 1806, when it was reduced to practically nothing for the succeeding ten years. In 1810 it was about 8,000 and the next year 22,240. From October 1, 1810, a record has been kept, but up until 1856 it included all "alien passengers arrived" and did not distinguish between immigrants and passengers, nor did it include immigration overland from Canada and Mexico. This record, which is inaccurate as explained, shows a total of 33,630,104 from the year ending September 30, 1820, to the year ending June 30, 1920. The largest immigration in any one year was 1,286,349 for the fiscal year 1907.

23 SERIES STUDEBAKER LIGHT-SIX SEDAN $1550

Hidden qualities largely determine the value and life of a closed car.

Beauty of line and finish and refinements are surface indications and important ones. But your satisfaction with a closed car depends to a great degree upon factors that are unseen—the in-built qualities that come from correct design, use of highest grade materials and careful workmanship.

The 23 Series Studebaker Light-Six Sedan is a quality car. It is built to endure—to give lasting satisfaction.

The Sedan body is substantially built. It will last for years and retain its beauty and comfort. Evidence of its hidden goodness lies in the fact that down under the paint and varnish, the pillars, roof rails and supporting members are made from specially selected ash.

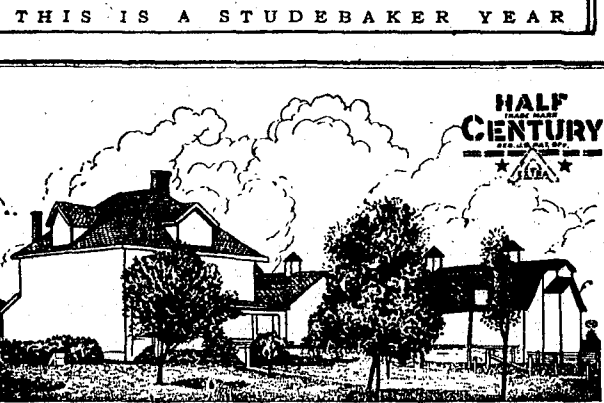

Four wide-opening doors make it easy for all passengers to get in or out without inconvenience to each other. A high-grade heater affords summer warmth on cold, damp days. The wide windows give broad vision in every direction.

Studebaker quality is traditional.

"HALF CENTURY" BRAND WHITE CEDAR SHINGLES

Laid with Galvanized or Copper Nails

Here are four reasons why "Half-Century" Brand Shingles are a superior investment.

First, because White Cedar is the best "weather-wearing" shingle wood.

Second, because "Half-Century" Brand Shingles are all "air-cured". No rushing of these through excessively heated dry kilns that take all the life and strength out of the wood, making it curl and warp.

Third, because "Half-Century" Shingles are always the right thickness. You won't find them splitting under the nails as will happen to a shingle that is cut too thin.

Fourth, because they are White Cedar they take any shade of stain or paint beautifully. "Half-Century" Shingles live as long as their name. It pays to insist on having them for your roof. All lumber dealers can supply you. Insist on seeing the above Trade-Mark on every bundle. It's your guarantee of quality. And remember this: "Half-Century" Shingles on steel common steel nails by a long, long way. Be sure to use galvanized or copper shingle nails.

IT SEEMS that most everyone sees plenty of drunks on our streets at night, according to reports, unless it is the officers. At least there don't seem to be any arrests. Why it is that there is so much lawlessness in Grayling? Is it because the people don't back up the officers of the law by exhibiting the right kind of spirit? A don't care people will develop don't care officers. If parents don't care if their boys get drunk, does anyone suppose that the officers are going to care? We guess not. We don't like to see people take matters into their own hands but we do admire the father or mother who is ready to turn hell upside down when it is learned that some unprincipled cur has sold their son liquor. It would be far better that a bootlegger and his whole family suffer than it would be to permit the unscrupulous practice of selling poison liquor to the young lads of our town who seem to be in the stages of indiscretion. There may be but little concern over the confirmed drunkard whenever he gets imbibed but there is grave concern over the younger generation.

Grayling is 90 miles northwest of Bay City and is one of the highest points in Michigan. Although it is on the banks of the Au Sable river up near the far-famed stream's source, Grayling air is dry as a bone. Year gas bombs were pressed into service by sheriff's officers last week to subdue two maniacs, who ran amuck at the Mt. Morris hospital, six miles north of Flint. The maniacs wrecked the interior of the ward, and tore a large iron bar from a window, terrorizing hospital attendants and a score of patients. When it became apparent hospital authorities could not cope with the situation, a call for help was sent to the sheriff's office. When the officers arrived they found Kenneth Dennis, World War veteran, standing off hospital attendants.

RUHR TENSION NEARING BREAK

TROOPS HAVE TAKEN POSSESSION OF HANNHEIM, DARMSTADT AND KARLSRUHE.

FRANCE CONTROLS SHIPPING

Occupation of the Three Cities is a Reprisal for Recent Acts of Sabotage.

Paris.—Announcing officially the occupation of parts of Mannheim, Karlsruhe and Darmstadt last week, the French government stated that thus far only the Rhine ports of the first two cities and the railroad work shops in the last had been seized.

The occupation is in reprisal for recent acts of sabotage in the Ruhr and Rhineland, the French announced. The entire cities will be occupied, if sabotage continues.

The advance of several companies, which seized these cities, puts the French much nearer to Frankfurt, and the Germans fear this city may next be taken.

By seizing the harbor section of Mannheim, the French control Rhine shipping and the customs. Posts to put this control immediately into effect were established.

The Germans have frequently incorrectly reported advances upon these two cities.

Last week's occupation was effected swiftly, it was a shock to the inhabitants, who immediately arranged measures of resistance.

Railway workers at both Darmstadt and Mannheim quit work when they found the French in their midst.

The invaders were active in the Ruhr as well, rounding up officials who are to be deported, arresting and dismantling police, while cavalry and tanks occupied and controlled the center of Gelsenkirchen, near Rotterdam.

Berlin.—President Ebert has decreed as espionage any aid rendered, with regard to political or military matters on behalf of any foreign power which has occupied German territory in peace time and also for sheltering or otherwise assisting or harboring persons accused of giving such aid. MICHIGAN SHIPPERS SCORE

Zone Transportation Rates Liable To Be Changed—Railroads Object

Washington.—Members of the Michigan Public Utilities Commission have left for Lansing after a two-day conference with members of the Interstate Commerce Commission, apparently hopeful that a way will be found for material change in the existing system of zone transportation rates, against which Michigan shippers have protested. The argument of the Pere Marquette and other distinctly Michigan railroads has been that the increased earnings given them by the zone system are necessary to their existence and particularly to continuance of operation of the smaller branch lines in the Northern part of the State.

The chief question raised by the Federal commission was as to how these small roads are to be taken care of if zone system is abolished.

The principal task, they argued, is to take care of a few small roads, and this they said could be done by giving these roads a larger split on traffic which originates or terminates on their lines.

PLAN STATE FERRY SERVICE

Bill Provides Funds for Purchase of Suitable Boats and Docks.

Lansing.—Establishment of a state ferry service, across the straits of Mackinac, provided for in a bill introduced in the senate by Senator Frank Bohn, of Newberry.

The bill provides that $250,000 be appropriated to buy a suitable vessel for the service, and establish the necessary docking facilities.

The service, which is designed to link the highway systems of the upper and lower peninsula, would be administered under the direction of the state highway department.

A rate of fare and carrying charge is to be fixed under the terms of the bill, sufficient to make the ferry pay its way.

This provides for the cost of operation, interest on the money invested and proper depreciation charges.

The general supervision of the ferry line is placed in the hands of the state administrative board.

WINNIPEG IN GRIP OF EPIDEMIC

Sleeping Sickness Claims Many in All Walks of Life

Winnipeg, Man.—Medicine men of Winnipeg, backed by all that science has to suggest, are fighting an epidemic of sleeping sickness that is from day to day claiming the brightest minds of the city.

Professional men, merchants, bankers, clergymen, teachers and professors and occasionally those in the lowly walks of life are victims. It is called lethargic encephalitis.

It differs from sleeping sickness of South Africa, which is injected into the victim by a fly, in that the Winnipeg disease is from a germ located in fluid at the base of the brain.

A few days after infection there comes over the victim an irresistible desire to sleep from which it is impossible almost to arouse the subject.

In many instances patients become violent in a few days and they have to be strapped to their beds, sometimes cages being built around the beds to keep the victims from doing violence to themselves and others.

There are 103 cases in Winnipeg and 52 deaths have occurred.

COCHRAN, NOTED ORATOR, DEAD

The evening before he had delivered a vigorous denunciation of the farm credits legislation pending in the house. And later he celebrated his sixty-ninth anniversary with an old-fashioned birthday party.

He was an unrelenting opponent of prohibition laws, which he said, were against all philosophy of government.

HOMESTEAD TRACTS ARE UNFIT

State Warns Veterans Not to Take Up U. S. Lands

Lansing.—Former soldiers who contemplate settling on the Federal homestead tract that was opened last month in northern counties in Michigan have been warned by Commissioner L. Whitney Watkins, of the State Department of Agriculture, that "for the most part the lands are unfit for agricultural utilization."

The Federal tract consists of 6,732 acres in Osego, Cheboygan, Roscommon, Montmorency, Ogishaw, Presque Isle, Oscoda, Iscona, Alcona, and Alpena counties.

Alarm Bell for Boiling Milk

The "Inchbell" is a device that rings an alarm when the milk is boiling. The instrument comprises an ordinary bell going fitted at the top of a tube containing a fusible composition that melts at a temperature equal to the boiling point of milk, or about 154 degrees Fahrenheit. The tube is placed in a saucepan containing cold milk being hung on the handle of the rim by means of a pair of hooks and the saucepan is then placed on the fire. As soon as the milk reaches scalding point the fusible composition softens and allows a ratchet wheel to move. A strong spring then draws the striker, causing it to strike the gong sharply, and warns the housewife to remove the saucepan.

Good. You are seeking your own will. You are seeking some good other than the law you are bound to obey. But how will you find good? It is not a thing of choice; it is a river that flows from the foot of the Invisible Throne, and flows by the path of obedience. I say, again, man cannot choose his duties. You may choose to forsake your duties, and choose not to have the sorrow they bring. But you will go forth; and what will you find? Sorrow without duty—bitter herbs, and no bread with them.—George Elliot.

"ONCE MADE UP"

By ELFIRED M. WHITNEY

(Copyright by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

THERE are two kinds of women—one makes up her face; the other her mind. Mrs. Warren belonged to the latter class. It was her favorite remark that "Once I make up my mind about a thing, I never change it—never!"

She stood on the veranda now, commanding the situation and the family, the latter consisting of the unimportant personages of one husband and one daughter, Margaret. These two were surprisingly alike in their week after week of unquestioned obedience, but as different in appearance as an ancient wilted cabbage is from a full blown, golden rose.

Mrs. Warren addressed her husband first.

"Alfred, bring the car at once. I have decided to go shopping this afternoon."

Margaret was on her feet at once. "Oh, mother, are you planning on getting those clothes for me that you spoke about yesterday?"

"Yes, you really do need some more."

The girl's disdainful glance at her faded gingham dress showed what her thoughts were in the matter.

"Please, mother, can't I have one of those satin-faced crepes like all the girls are wearing. Marlon Naborly has one, and—"

"Now, Margaret," interrupted her mother, with an even more determined air than usual, "there's not a bit of use telling me about those Naborly's again, and how they waste their money dressing up that Marlon. Why, we can buy and sell them, but if I'd frittered away money like they do, we never could have, so—"

"But, mother—"

"I've made up my mind about that—and once made up, I never change it—never. Your taffeta is just as good as new—you've worn it only three years. You do need another gingham. I'm going to get that because they're having a sale on them today."

"I don't want another of those hateful, cheap things," Margaret flared, the tears beginning to come. "I want a sweater and sport skirt."

Mrs. Warren reduced her to silence with a glance, and calmly continued: "As for the satin-faced crepe and Marlon Naborly—hump! What good has it done for them to dress her up, I'd like to know? Does she have the best young man in town coming to see her regularly, like you do? Guess clothes don't make any difference with Henry. And you know she'd give her eyes to get him."

The lady's head lifted with pardonable pride, for, in spite of her outward acidity, she was a mother, which means that her own offspring was the best and dearest of her kind, even though she never expressed such feelings to the girl herself. The same proud smile lingered as she went down the steps to the waiting car.

When she returned an hour or so later, Margaret was still sitting in the hammock, but her face was buried in her arms. Mrs. Warren came up the steps in triumph.

"Well, I'm glad I went. Such bargains! I got some more of that gingham, it wore so well, and they had some voile at 19 cents a yard, so I made up my mind that it wouldn't matter if it was a little out of style—why, what's the matter? And where's Henry? He's usually here by this time, isn't he?"

The girl raised her tear-stained face. The agony of first love in her eyes caught at her mother's heart.

"He's—he's over at the Naborly's. Marlon called him up on his way here. I saw her. And he—he's left yet. She's all dolled up in her new dress."

The words came punctuated with sobs, then her head dropped back on the pillow.

For a moment the woman gazed, then her mother was all action.

"Alfred! bring that car back. Naborly's! hump! I'll show those persons a thing or two!"

In a half an hour she came up the stairs again, putting and snuffing.

"There! I guess that'll fix those Naborly's. Here's a new blue crepe de chine for you to wear—oh, common, you know. (That fatty Naborly could not wear that style). It's the newest thing they have, too. And here's some new matelasse satin that cost $8 a yard—that Marlon's got only cost $3.98. The dressmaker told me. She's coming tomorrow, so's to get it done for the dance. And here's a new sweater and one of those sport skirts."

Margaret could only stare at her mother, who gasped madly for breath once more, then continued:

"I stopped into Naborly's to get her recipe for doughnuts. (Her recipe—hump! But I had to have some excuse). Henry was trying to get away, so I told him I hoped he'd have time to fix that meat chopper for me—he was so clever about those things. Heavens! Here he is now. Quick! Go in and fix your hair and put on that crepe de chine dress. Come right up and sit down, Henry. Just move those packages. Yes, I've been getting some new things for Margaret. She'll be right out. I decided she ought to have them, and when I once make up my mind to a thing, I never change it—never."

NERVOUS WOMAN COMPLETE WRECK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

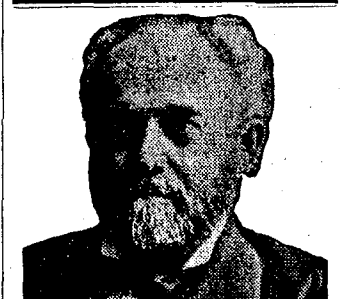

Indianapolis, Indiana.—"Now I want to tell you just what induced me to take your medicine. It seemed that I had some kind of weakness so that I could not carry a child its full time. The last time I was troubled this way I had a nervous breakdown and was a complete wreck. The doctor thought I would not live, and if I did that I would never be well again. But I told them I was going to get well, that I was not going to die just then. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took six bottles of it. I soon got strong again and had three more children. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound ever since, and if you could see me now you would think I had always been well."—Mrs. MARY F. HENRICK, 234 Detroit St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire reproductive system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intends.

A MAN WHO BECAME FAMOUS

Doctor R. V. Pierce, whose picture appears above, was not only a successful physician, but also a profound student of the medicinal qualities of Nature's remedies, roots and herbs, and by close observation of the methods used by the Indians, he discovered their great remedial qualities, especially for weaknesses of women, and after careful preparation succeeded in giving to the world a remedy which has been used by women with the best results for half a century. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is still in great demand, while many other so-called "cure-alls" have come and gone. The reason for its phenomenal success is because of its absolute purity, and Dr. Pierce's high standing as an honored citizen of Buffalo is a guarantee of all that is claimed for the Favorite Prescription as a regulator for the ill peculiar to women.

Find What CANADA has to offer YOU!

If your dream of success seems like a hopeless ambition, if you are discouraged trying to get ahead on high priced land, if your present location fails to give you opportunity, there is a new deal for you, a new chance in the fertile, virgin farms of Western Canada, where wheat produces 20 to 40 bushels to the acre, where the 1922 crop was biggest in history, where oats, barley and hay and fodder crops are the basis of a great dairy industry, and a man's work brings him success and prosperity.

Low Priced Land—the Last Great West

In Western Canada you still can buy virgin prairie land at $15 to $20 per acre, on long terms if desired, near to town, railroads, etc.—land such as has for many years produced the world's prize winning wheat, oats, barley, flax, rye, alfalfa. Canada has no "war time" land boom; prices are not inflated—you get in on the ground floor.

Taxes Favor the Farmer as Values Increase

The tax laws of Western Canada encourage the producing farmer. The tax on land is reduced when it is brought under cultivation—while on your buildings, machinery, improvements, personal property, automobile, there is no tax at all. A single crop is often worth more, acre for acre, than the cost of the land.

Rent Now—Buy Later Pay Out of Profits

Canada welcomes the industrious settler. What you have now isn't so important. If your capital is small, or you cannot sell your present holdings to advantage, rent a fertile Canadian farm and "try it out" for a season or two. Make a good living, increase your capital, and buy later. Farms may be rented from successful settlers on easy terms; in some cases with option of purchase.

Buy on Exceptional Terms—32 Years to Pay

For the benefit of those wishing to buy land a national non-profit sharing organization—the Canada Colonization Association—has been established with head office at Winnipeg, and United States offices at St. Paul. This Association offers selected land convenient to railways—much of it at $15 to $20 per acre—on very small cash payment; no further payment until third year; balance extended over thirty years, but purchaser may pay up and obtain title at any time if desired. Interest six percent per annum on deferred payments.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

R. D. BAILEY
County Agricultural Agent

Mr. Oliver B. Scott, President of the Crawford County Farm Bureau, reports on Annual Meeting of State Farm Bureau at the Agricultural College.

To the Farmers of Crawford County: It was you that elected me as your delegate to attend the fifth annual meeting of the State Farm Bureau, and I suppose you are anxious or would like to know how good the meeting was, and what was done. It was one of the best business meetings I have had the pleasure to attend. First, all delegates went into a separate room with their credentials to get their badge as a delegate. The meeting was held in the Agricultural building in room 402. Roll was called in the morning and afternoon and I was always there at roll call as I did not want to miss any of the good things that were to come up before this meeting. There were 130 delegates present. First, the secretary's report. I wish every one in Crawford County could have heard this report. Just imagine a report for the largest industry in the world, so I say stick to the Farm Bureau, for agriculture is coming into its own, and when that time comes be ready to throw up your hand and say "I helped put it across." During the past twelve months the Michigan State Farm Bureau has continued to go forward towards greater efficiency and permanency. In the live stock exchange the Michigan State Farm Bureau sent a man over to Buffalo to organize an association at Buffalo. Today Michigan live stock producers have sales services, second to none in the country at both Detroit and Buffalo.

The manager of the produce exchange at Detroit states. That the first six months the total business was $186,927.57. If you are in a position to ship your produce write the Exchange. They are in a position to help you sell it.

Purchasing Department. This department has also made very marked progress. There were 1745 car loads handled during last year. These different departments are for your good and mine, and when the snow is gone let us get busy and show to the State Farm Bureau that we are a part of the unit.

Savings Department. This department, under the management of Assistant Treasurer, J. Lee Morford, has made a saving of $36,000 in clerical hire during the past year. This saving was made by centralized bookkeeping of all business departments. One set of books, now answers the whole purpose. So you can see that the State Farm Bureau is doing and accomplishing big things for you and me in this big industry—Agriculture.

Transportation Service. The accomplishments along traffic lines include the rate case, that was the lowering of freight rates; saving of a number of branch lines. These include the Freeport, Big Rapids, White Cloud, Barryton and Weidman branches, on the Pere Marquette, and the Lewiston Branch on the Michigan Central. Transportation has come to be one of the farmer's most important and critical problems.

It was found that when the farmers wanted refrigerator cars there were few to be had as the Pere Marquette had only three and the Michigan Central none, so you can readily see through lack of these cars what we are up against. There were 17 resolutions offered, and they were as follows:

1. To aid co-operative marketing. This resolution was carried unanimously.
2. Cars for potato growers. This was to be taken care of at once, so that the 1922 potato crop could be taken care of.
3. Boys' and Girls' clubs. There are so many good things that can be accomplished through these clubs, that it is my desire to see one or more of these clubs in every community. Get busy, boys and girls! Ask dad or ma about them. Better still, ask your county agent.
4. Adoption of eastern time. This resolution met defeat.
5. For Tuberculosis eradication. We believe that this is one of the most important measures as a safeguard for the health and welfare of the children, and it is hoped that this work may be speeded up and the State covered as soon as possible.
6. That the heads of the several departments be commended for their successful, efficient and constructive management.
7. The Great Lakes to Ocean Waterway. The delegates wish the project to be carried out.
8. Truth-in-Fabrics bill. The filled Milk bill, and to prohibit the issuance of all tax-exempt securities in the United States. It looks now as though these measures would meet the approval of Congress.
9. That the 18th Amendment be enforced.
10. Pay as you go policy should be adopted by the National, State and Municipal Governments.

The great work that is being done in this Big Organization makes one feel like putting his shoulder to the wheel, and as Theodore Roosevelt once said: "Business should be so regulated that big business will not be eating up the little business."

When we stop and think of this old saying, that no man or set of men will protect another man or set of men in trade who will not protect themselves, we realize that it is an absolute fact that the man who is not protected gets nowhere. Organized effort counts. When in doubt ask your county agent.

I attended the Land O' Laying School at Roscommon today, and the explanations and pictures were made clear. I met one of Roscommon's leading citizens and our talk was on agriculture and agricultural schools. I was impressed with the idea that Roscommon County was missing many good things by not being organized, and having a county agent. County Agent R. D. Bailey, was on the job, telling the people what good things are being done, and it certainly would be better if they had a County Agent.

But, some say, they cost so much, it makes our taxes so much higher. Now this is the remark that was handed me the other day: "Our County Agent costs us so much we can hardly pay our taxes." Now I want to say right here that the County Agent's salary and expenses amount to $2400.00 of which the State pays $1200.00 leaving the county $1200.00 to pay. Now, this farmer did not realize that Grayling Township, with only 5 or 6 farmers, pays $800.00 and the other five townships $300.00 among the five; so you can readily see that the farmers of Crawford County pay only a portion of the $300.00 as the speculator and sportsman pay part of this. The farmers of Crawford County ought to be glad that we have a County Agent where we can go and let him help solve our problems.

Oliver B. Scott,
President of Crawford County Farm Bureau.

LAND-CLEARING MEETINGS IN CRAWFORD COUNTY WELL RECEIVED. FARMERS TURN OUT TO HEAR MESSAGE OF EFFICIENCY.

The big white demonstration car of the Michigan Central Railroad, carrying with it Mr. L. F. Livingston and Mr. N. A. Kessler, land-clearing specialists from the M. A. C., was filled to its capacity five times in Crawford County by farmers and others who were anxious to learn about efficiency in land clearing. The meeting at Roscommon was especially well attended, while those at Frederic and Grayling were not far behind in the matter of attendance.

The program consisted largely of motion pictures and talks on land clearing, with a short talk on dairying as an added feature. The keynote of the entire program was that of EFFICIENCY—efficiency in the matter of land clearing efficiency in digging ditches, etc. The "tramp stamp" was held up as an example of supreme inefficiency because it causes a higher labor cost in the cultivation of the fields containing such stumps, a loss of a portion of the producing area of that field, and a loss in the matter of broken machinery and harnesses. Our County Agent, Mr. R. D. Bailey, sounded this keynote when he said, by way of introduction, "Like any other business, we are always looking for a more efficient unit of production and an acre is not an efficient unit when it contains 'tramp stumps.' Nor is a farm an efficient unit when a large portion produces nothing toward the payment of the taxes except stumps."

Mr. Livingston particularly stressed the matter of caution and safety in the use of explosives. He cited the case of an accident which happened near Alger where a boy had two fingers blown off and one eye damaged while playing with a blasting-cap which his father, well versed in the use of explosives, had left lying in the house. "Usually a man has only one accident with dynamite, so let us use ALL precautions and never forget that the cap is more dangerous than the dynamite," remarked Mr. Livingston.

The motion pictures showing the blasting of ditches by dynamite brot forth several questions, indicating that it caused many of the farmers to consider its use on their farms. It was shown how a ditch 5 feet wide and 12 feet deep was blown at a cost of $1.30 per rod for the material. Under proper conditions of moisture and class of soil, it was made very evident that ditching can be done most efficiently by this method. Where the soil is very wet, it is no trouble at all to shoot fifty or more charges, eight inches apart, with one cap, the shock propagating the rest.

The information relative to the war salvage material aroused the most interest, however. The government has 3,500,000 pounds of picric acid on hand which they are offering to the farmers for land clearing purposes at the cost of carting the material. Since it is a case of "first come first serve" and other states are laying plans to grab off huge amounts of it, Mr. Livingston is extremely anxious that the farmers of Michigan hurry up to get their share. Since this material will cost the farmers of Crawford County about 15c a pound if ordered in carload lots, Mr. Bailey took steps at the meeting to get enough orders to make up a carload and he reported after the meeting that he had several orders. This will mean a saving of at least fifty per cent on the explosive bill for our farmers.

Several charts were displayed in the car, showing how many labor-saving devices could be made right on the farm. Among them was the famous Paul Bunyan Hammer, and the scissor stone-boat for handling large rocks. These can be made by any man and should be of great value for the man who has some land to clear. Mr. E. J. Leenhouts, Assistant Agricultural Agent of the M. C. R., touched briefly on the advantages of the dairy business in northern Michigan, pointing out that it passed the severe test of the past three years by keeping more farms from foreclosures than all other lines of farming put together. He said that the scrub-bull was the most extravagant piece of machinery on the farm and that the Bull Association was the most inefficient method of breeding cattle that would produce above our average of 3500 pounds milk a year. "Weeding out the unprofitable cow, breeding up the good ones, feeding skillfully, these are just as essentially part of the dairy business as is milking and the rest of the chores. Every third heifer born in U. S. will prove unprofitable to the owner and should be located. When you double the production of your herd you treble the net profits." These are some of the points which he brought out.

Mr. N. A. Kessler, Assistant Land clearing Specialist of M. A. C. located at Bay City, discussed the Woodlot Act of 1917, showing how it was possible for a man to include a fourth of his farm in a woodlot and have it exempt from taxation by complying with a few small conditions. In the meantime, he would be building up for himself a very valuable asset, as a good woodlot is bound to be in a few years from now.

The agricultural department of the N. Y. C. Lines made it possible to give the school children of Roscommon and Grayling an extra treat by providing four reels of motion picture for an even g show at each of the places. These films were of a general agricultural nature and were greatly appreciated by the large crowd of boys and girls who filled the car to the roof. It was a great night for the kiddies and they made the most of it.

INCOME TAX FACTS—No. 5

Liability to file an income tax return for the year 1922 is determined by a person's status on the last day of the taxable year, December 31, if the return is made on the calendar year basis, as most are. If on date he was single he must file a return if his net income for 1922 was $1,000 or more, and he is allowed only an exemption of $1,000. If he was married on December 31, he is granted the exemption allowed married persons for the full year, $2,500 if his net income was $5,000 or less, and $2,000 if his net income exceeded $5,000. The bride's income, however, must be considered with that of her husband, the larger exemptions being allowed married couples living together. A widow or widower whose spouse died before the end of the year is classed as a single person. Divorcees and persons separated by mutual consent also are classed as single persons.

Similar conditions exist with respect to the head of the family. I, during the year, his support of relatives ceased he is entitled only to the $1000 exemption. A man who has a dependent child, not mentally or physically defective, that attains the age of 18 years just before the close of the taxable year, can not claim the $400 credit for a dependent.

SIXTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS ENDS

RECORD SITTING OF NATIONAL LEGISLATIVE BODY COME TO CLOSE SUNDAY.

LAST SESSION UNTIL DECEMBER

"Uncle Joe" Cannon; Fordney of Michigan; Volsted, Author of Dry Act And Others Answer Last Roll Call.

Washington — The Sixty-seventh congress, which had spent a greater proportion of its two-year span of life in actual session than any other in the history of the country, adjourned sine die at noon last Sunday.

During the last few hours of the session, President Harding, spending part of the time at the capitol, signed the farm credits bill and 98 other measures. No legislation was vetoed.

Vice-President Coolidge's gavel fell sharply at noon, after an almost colorless morning session of two hours, and the house adjourned at 12:06 p. m., after a concert by a section of the marine band and a chorus of popular songs by members and spectators.

The session Sunday was in all likelihood the last until next December, unless some special legislation requires a special session.

The last bill to become law was the "better butter" measure changing butter fat standards. An important measure placed on the statute books at the last moment was the one providing for return to enemy alien owners of all seized property worth $10,000 or less.

Parasol eulogies occupied much of the time of the hour and a half the house was in session. Representatives Fordney, of Michigan, Campbell of Kansas, Kitchin of North Carolina, Alice Robertson of Oklahoma, and Mrs. Huck all were given ovations but "Uncle Joe" Cannon received the greatest tribute.

After praises of the retiring veteran of 46 years of legislative service had been said by Representative Hicks, Republican, New York, and Sisson, Democrat, Mississippi, Mr. Cannon was escorted down the center aisle by Representative Roderberg of Illinois while members and spectators stood applauding and cheering.

Another of the veteran legislators whose career in congress ended was Andrew J. Volsted, author of the prohibition enforcement measure, who was defeated last November.

The outstanding domestic legislation of the sixty-seventh congress was the Fordney-Cummins tariff act. The house ways and means committee got to work on it before the congress assembled and it passed the house July 21, 1921. It was more than a year later or on August 19, that it passed the senate. It took the place of the Democratic Underwood-Simmons law. The soldier bonus bill also passed both houses, but President Harding vetoed it, on the ground that it made no provision for raising money to pay the bonus, and that the treasury was not able itself to find the money.

In the closing days of the congress there was also enacted a bill both domestic and international in its implications. This was the measure approving the refunding of the British war debt of $4,600,000,000.

Because of a filibuster in the senate which will go down as one of the most remarkable in senatorial annals, the "pet measure" of the administration, the merchant marine or ship subsidy bill, failed of passage. The house passed it, but though administration leaders tried in every way to get it through the senate, a group of Democrats and farm bloc Republicans obstructed it to death.

A senate filibuster also killed the Dyer anti-lynching bill.

GAS WIPES OUT WHOLE FAMILY

Six Persons—Three Generations of One Family Killed.

Chicago—Six persons—three generations of one family—were killed Sunday when a deadly gas, used in ridding a first-floor restaurant of roaches, seeped through an opening in old walls up to the second floor flat.

A dozen other persons probably are alive only because they slept with windows open, for fumes were so penetrating canaries and goldfish in neighboring flats, even as high as the third floor, succumbed. Here is the list of dead: William Kratzberg, 80 years old, wealthy retired wagonmaker. John Kratzberg, 69, his wife. Mary Kratzberg, 54, their son. Mrs. Laura Kratzberg, 38, daughter of the Kratzbergs. Henry Szymanski, 38, her husband. Harold, their 16-year-old son.

The gas was probably the most deadly gaseous substance known aside from fumes turned loose in Flanders by Germany during the war.

The position of the bodies indicated the gas in some instances had ended life while the victim slept, but in others had choked off a futile effort to reach relief that only fresh air could bring.

It is made up of cyanide of sodium sulphuric acid and water. The combination forms a substance that eats up the oxygen and hydrogen in air leaving only the poisonous gas.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY.

Nothing So Good for a Cough or Cold. "Everyone who has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy speaks well of it," writes Edward F. Miller, Abbottsford, Pa. "People who once use this preparation are seldom satisfied with any other. It is excellent to allay a cough or break up a cold."

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

The Republican Electors of the Twp. of Grayling will meet in Caucus at the Court House, Grayling, Mich., on Monday March 12th, at 8:00 p. m. Standard time for the purpose of nominating the following Township Officers, to wit:

One Supervisor, one Clerk, one Treasurer, one Highway Commissioner, one Justice of the Peace, full term; one Justice of the Peace to fill vacancy; one member of Board of Review to fill vacancy; Overseers of Highway, District No. 1 and 2; and four Constables.

All citizens—men and women, of 21 By order of, TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE. Dated March 6, 1923.

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS.

The Democratic Electors of the Twp. of Grayling will meet in Caucus at the Town Hall, Grayling, Mich., on Monday March 12th, at 7:30 p. m. Standard time for the purpose of nominating the following Officers, to wit: One Supervisor, one Clerk, one Treasurer, one Highway Commissioner, one Justice of the Peace, full term; one Justice of the Peace to fill vacancy; one member of Board of Review to fill vacancy; Overseers of Highway, District No. 1 and 2; and four Constables.

All citizens—men and women, of 21 years and over, are invited to attend. Dated March 6, 1923.

By order of, TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE.

EXCELLENT REMEDY FOR CONSTIPATION.

It would be hard to find a better remedy for constipation than Chamberlain's Tablets. They are easy to take and mild and gentle in effect. Give them a trial when you have need.

THE PNEUMONIA MONTH.

March is a typical pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard winter, the system loses much of its resistance and people grow careless. When every cold, no matter how slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there is much less danger of pneumonia. It should be borne in mind that pneumonia is a germ disease and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an expectorant and cleans out the germ laden mucus and not only cures a cold but prevents its resulting in pneumonia. It is pleasant to take. Children take it willingly.

A GOOD THING—DON'T MISS IT.

General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

On reading and filing the petition of the said Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for a decree in favor of the State of Michigan, against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts therein specified, claimed to be due for said lands

ing and decree at the regular term of the said Circuit Court, the Court on that day, and that all persons interested in each of the parcels of land therein described, or having any claim therein by the State of Michigan, for such taxes, interest and charges, or any part thereof, shall appear in said Court, and file with the clerk thereof their objections to the same, if they have any, and if they have no objection to the same, then in default thereof the same will be taken as confessed and a decree will be taken and entered as prayed for in said petition. And that the parties to the said petition, or their heirs, assigns, or successors, shall be bound by the outcome of the said decree described in said petition for which a decree of sale shall be made. Will be sold for the several taxes, interest and charges thereon as determined by such decree. And the first money in

STATE OF MICHIGAN.

To the Circuit Court for the County of Crawford in Chancery:

The petition of Oramel B. Fuller, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, respectfully shows that the list of lands returned and unpaid, marked "Schedule A," contains a description of all lands in said County of Crawford upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein, and which were returned as delinquent for said years, and that said taxes have not been paid, but have been gathered with the total amount of such taxes, with interest computed thereon to the time fixed for sale, and collection for and expenses, as provided by law, extended against each of said parcels of land.

Your petitioner further shows to the Court that said lands were returned to the Auditor General under the provisions of the Act of the 18th of February, 1891, relating to the payment of said taxes for said years respectively, and that said taxes remain unpaid; except that lands included in said "Schedule A," for taxes of 1890 or prior years were returned in the Auditor General's report of the 18th of February, 1891, under the provisions of the general tax laws in force prior to the passage of Act 201 of the Public Acts of 1891, and which taxes remain unpaid.

Your petitioner further shows that in all cases where lands are included in "Schedule A," as aforesaid for taxes of 1890 or of any prior year, said lands have not been sold for said taxes, or have been heretofore sold for said delinquent taxes and the sale is deemed to have been completed, and the provisions of the complete jurisdiction, or have been exercised as provided by law.

Your petitioner further shows and avers that the taxes, interest, and expenses extended against the parcels of land in said "Schedule A," are a valid lien on the several parcels of lands described in said schedule.

Your petitioner further shows that the said taxes on the said described lands have been returned unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent, and the said taxes not having been paid, and the same being now due and remaining unpaid, he prays that you will cause to be levied in favor of the State of Michigan, against each parcel of land in said schedule, for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fees and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule, and for the sale of said lands to satisfy the same, and in default of payment of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands, that each of said parcels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon, as provided by law, to pay the lien aforesaid.

And your petitioner will ever pray, etc.

Dated February 26th, 1902.

ORAMEL B. FULLER
Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State.
